DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

The instant specification does not support the current amendment to “determining the direction of origin of microseismic oscillations from the measured oscillation data”.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Vance ('524).

Art Unit: 3662

Vance discloses a method for analyzing a ground structure by positioning a plurality of microseismic oscillation wave sensors (T1-Tm) and measuring microseismic oscillations at the measurement points to obtain data generated by the microseismic oscillations. The oscillations includes at least one of horizontal and vertical data. The method includes analyzing the data by data analyzer (16). On col. 2, lines 39-40, Vance does suggest that the locations for microseismic data measurements are “moved to new locations as excavation in the mine proceeds”. Thus, Vance does suggest the moving of microseismic sensors for measuring microseismic events.

The difference between the method of claim 1 and the method disclosed by Vance is the instant claim specifies that the measurements are repeated after changing the locations of the measurement points and then the data is analyzed. It would be obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art that the system disclosed by Vance would repeat the measurements after changing the locations of the measurement points.

Claim 1 is so rejected.

Dependent claims 2-8 are further provided by Vance.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments filed March 13, 2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The arguments directed to claim 1 are not convincing to overcome the 35 USC 103 rejection since the amendment entails new matter.

Conclusion

6. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
